Restrictive business practices

The Second United Nations Conference to Review All Aspects of the Set of Multilaterally Agreed Equitable Principles and Rules for the Control of Restrictive Business Practices, convened pursuant to General Assembly resolutions 41/167, of 5 December 1986, was held at Geneva from 26 November to 7 December 1990. At its 6th (closing) meeting on 7 December 1990, the Conference adopted a resolution entitled "Strengthening the implementation of the Set", in paragraph 17 of which it recommended to the General Assembly that a Third Review Conference be convened in 1995.

Should the General Assembly decide to convene a Third Review Conference in 1995, the Conference could be accommodated in the UNCTAD calendar of meetings during the last quarter of 1995.

It will be recalled that, in paragraph 70 of the Cartagena Commitment, the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, at its eighth session, decided that the terms of reference of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Restrictive Business Practices should remain unchanged. In paragraphs 147 to 149 of the Commitment, the Conference sets out some of the main objectives and activities of UNCTAD and of Governments in this area.

In accordance with previous practice, the General Assembly may wish to decide that the Intergovernmental Group of Experts should serve as the preparatory body for the Review Conference.

World Conference on Human Rights

The World Conference on Human Rights was convened from 14 to 25 June 1993 at Vienna. Prior to the Conference, consultations were held from 9 to 12 June 1993, at Vienna, by senior officials of the Governments representing the States Members participating in the World Conference. 171 representatives of States, 95 observers from international and national organizations, as well as 841 non-governmental organizations, took part in the deliberations of the World Conference.

Within the framework of the World Conference and pursuant to General Assembly resolution 46/116 of 17 December 1991, four meetings were held at Vienna, including a meeting of the independent experts responsible for the special procedures for the protection of human rights (14-16 June 1993), a meeting of representatives of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (14-15 June 1993), a meeting of chairpersons of international and regional treaty-based bodies (15-16 June 1993) and a forum for non-governmental organizations (10-12 June 1993). The reports of these meetings are contained in document A/CONF.157/24/Part II.

On 25 June 1993, the World Conference on Human Rights adopted by acclamation its final document, entitled "Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action", which will be reproduced in the report to be submitted by the Secretary-General to the General Assembly at its forty-eighth session pursuant to Assembly resolution 47/122 of 18 December 1992.

With regard to the substantive outcome, the World Conference on Human Rights, on 24 June 1993, adopted by 88 votes to 1, with 54 abstentions, a special declaration on Bosnia and Herzegovina. On the same day, a special declaration on Angola was adopted without a vote (see A/CONF.157/24/Part I).

In addition, the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action contains several recommendations to be considered by the General Assembly. Among these, the Secretary-General and the General Assembly were requested to take immediate steps to increase substantially the resources for the human rights programme from within the existing and future regular budgets of the United Nations, as well as to take urgent steps to seek increased extra-budgetary resources. The Secretary-General and the Assembly were further requested to provide sufficient human, financial and other resources to the Centre for Human Rights to enable it effectively, efficiently and expeditiously to carry out its activities. In this context, Member States were also urged to adopt a coherent approach aimed at securing resources commensurate to the increased mandates on human rights allocated to the Secretariat. The World Conference on Human Rights further invited the Secretary-General to consider whether adjustments to procedures in the programme budget cycle would be necessary or helpful to ensure the timely and effective implementation of human rights activities as mandated by Member States.

In addition, the World Conference on Human Rights recommended to the General Assembly that when examining the report of the Conference at its forty-eighth session, it begin, as a matter of priority, consideration of the question of the establishment of a High Commissioner for Human Rights for the promotion and protection of all human rights.

In the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action the World Conference further recommended that the General Assembly proclaim an international decade of the world's indigenous people to begin from January 1994, including action-oriented programmes to be decided upon in partnership with indigenous people.

The proclamation of a United Nations decade for human rights education in order to promote, encourage and focus educational activities should be considered. The Conference also recommended that the General Assembly consider the possibility of proclaiming a United Nations decade for human rights.

With regard to the human rights of women, the World Conference called upon the General Assembly to adopt the draft declaration on violence against women, and States were urged to combat violence against women in accordance with its provisions.

The World Conference also called upon the General Assembly to adopt the draft standard rules on the equalization of opportunities for persons with disabilities at its meeting in 1993.

With regard to the follow-up, the World Conference recommended that the General Assembly, the Commission on Human Rights and other organs and agencies of the United Nations system related to human rights consider ways and means for the full implementation, without delay, of the recommendations contained in its Declaration. In this context, the Secretary-General of the United Nations was requested to invite, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, all States and all organs and agencies of the United Nations system related to human rights to report to him on the progress made in the implementation of the Declaration and to submit a report to the Assembly at its fifty-third session, through the Commission on Human Rights and the Economic and Social Council.

The General Assembly will have before it a report on the outcome of the World Conference prepared in accordance with General Assembly resolution 47/122. The full report of the World Conference will be circulated as document A/CONF.157/24.
